“Moderate Islam Revisited: Voices for Modern Islamic Governance and Civil Society after the Arab Spring”

RETHINKING CONTEMPORARY ISLAM 東文研セミナー

Contemporary Islam's political relevance has been hotly debated in recent years. At the plane of political thought, diverse contending narratives have emerged on the role of the state. Unanimity does not exist among Muslim thinkers, scholars and intellectuals on the basic premises and key concepts that would endow legitimacy onto a political order. “What is the State of Islamic Political Thought?” and “Moderate Islam Revisited: Voices for Modern Islamic Governance and Civil Society after the Arab Spring” will be discussed in the workshop.
