ITASIA115: Migration Issues in Asia

Course Name: ITASIA 115
Course Title: Migration Issues in Asia
Instructor: Michiyo Yoneno-Reyes, PhD (米野みちよ)
Associate Professor, Institute for Advanced Studies on Asia
Pre-requisite: N/A
Schedule: A1A2 Fridays 4th Period (14:55-16:40)
Class Room: Meeting Room 2 (3rd Floor, Institute for Advanced Studies on Asia)
(東洋文化研究所 3階 第二会議室)

Background:

Migration is an issue pertaining to aging and human security --- two of the most serious issues humankind face today. Migration, which used to be a matter of a once-in-a-lifetime-decision, has accelerated, become casual, and part of everyday life to many citizens in Asia in the 21st century. Technological developments, changing policies, and economic demands and other social conditions facilitate that.

With increase of inter-Asian migration and being alarmed by rapid increase of asylum seekers in the region in recent years, it is significant to obtain appropriate grasp of the issue in historical and socio-cultural perspectives, while geopolitical aspects of the issue may be dealt with in other courses.

Aims:

1. To understand international migration in 21st century Asia, from perspectives of both developing countries where labor emigration and marriage emigration is rampant and those of developed countries where aging poses serious challenges.
2. To become equipped with theoretical grounding of migration studies and multi-/interdisciplinary perspectives

Goals:

1. To become familiar with the demographic change in Asia and the world today in connection with migration.
2. To understand issues pertaining to labor migration in Asia
3. To understand issues pertaining to marriage migration in Asia
4. To understand multiculturalism in Asia
5. To become familiar with current and emerging issues of migration in Asia
